

I am honored to share my experience working with Samaria Collins,

It has been my absolute pleasure to work with Samaria in my capacity as librarian here at Wade College. As chapter advisor for Phi Theta Kappa, I've witnessed her remarkable commitment as she now serves her third consecutive term as president. She brings unwavering enthusiasm to every initiative and is currently playing a key role in planning our upcoming induction ceremony, ensuring new members have a meaningful and welcoming experience.

Dallas G.L.A.M., the student club for marketing and management students, has flourished under Samaria's leadership. Through her vision, the organization has strengthened its presence on campus, hosting vibrant events and forging strong connections with students and stakeholders. Her ability to bring ideas to life has made this the most active and engaged iteration of the club in my time at Wade College.

What makes Samaria exceptional goes far beyond her leadership titles. Her character exemplifies the very best qualities we hope to see in our students. Samaria connects with everyone here at Wade College. She approaches each interaction with genuine warmth and empathy, creating meaningful connections across campus. She consistently seeks out fellow students, staff, and faculty, checking in personally and creating spaces where voices matter. Samaria possesses a rare ability to make everyone feel valued through her attentive listening and sincere interest in others' wellbeing. Her thoughtfulness extends beyond casual exchanges – she consistently demonstrates integrity in her commitments, reliability in her responsibilities, and courage in tackling challenges. Even during stressful periods, Samaria maintains a positive outlook that inspires those around her.

While developing her professional portfolio with impressive dedication, Samaria brings the same meticulous attention to detail and creative vision that characterizes all her endeavors. Her commitment to growth and excellence is evident in how thoroughly she approaches this important professional milestone. Beyond formal leadership roles, Samaria breathes life into our campus culture. She builds authentic relationships, orchestrates successful projects, and inspires those around her through both words and actions.

I enthusiastically endorse Samaria Collins as a standout talent who not only achieves remarkable results but also uplifts her entire community. Any organization that brings Samaria onto their team will immediately benefit from her innovative thinking, genuine compassion, and tireless drive for excellence.

Best Regards,
